

Want to learn more about ROSES?

The Seattle Rose Society encourages people of all levels of gardening experience to grow and enjoy roses. Beginners can learn which varieties are suited to our Pacific Northwest climate, and how to make them flourish. Experienced rose growers can expand their knowledge and share their expertise with others.

The Seattle Rose Society meets at the Center for Urban Horticulture, 3501 NE 41st Street, on the third Tuesday of each month except July, August, and December at 7:30 PM (the October meeting is our banquet held on a Sunday). Open to the public, these meetings feature speakers and offer visitors and members alike the opportunity to ask questions and to share information. The annual rose show in June gives the public an opportunity to see and compare a wide variety of roses.

The Seattle Rose Society publishes Rose Petals, our monthly bulletin that keeps the membership informed of Society activities and contains articles and news notes packed with facts and advice on growing roses.
